NO. 42.

Items of Interest Gleaned from Our Exchanges

Wayne Democrat: C. H. Hendrickson was a visitor at Dakota City Tuesday.

Allen News: Mr. and Mrs. Frank Hale spent Sunday at Hubbard. Mrs. Jane Ward returned home Wednesday from a visit with her brother, Wm. Warner, at Dakota City.

Bloomfield Monitor: Todd Christopherson and A. F. Tucker, of Crofton, spent a few hours here Monday on their return from a business trip to the county seat. Naomi McCoy returned home with them for a two weeks' visit at the Christopherson home.

Salix Items in Sloan, Ia., Star: Ralph Linkswiler left Monday for his home in Rosalie, Neb., where he will spend his summer vacation. He will return here this fall to resume his schooling, making his home with his uncle and aunt, Mr. and Mrs. S. D. Cone.

Ponca Advocate: Mrs. Mapps was a passenger to South Sioux City last Saturday. Miss Clara Cook has closed her school at Dakota City and is home for the summer. Catherine and Margaret Davey went to Jackson Wednesday to spend the week with Grandma Twobig.

Wynot Tribune: The families of Rev. E. T. Antrim and Les Bridenbaugh of Coleridge have been camping and fishing out at the mouth of the Bow during the past week. The Johnson fishing and boating place is being largely patronized this spring, camping parties being numerous.

Walthill Times: Geo. Lamson was in Rosalie Monday. Mr. and Mrs. A. P. Doran and daughter Ruth, and Mrs. Burns returned to Sioux City last evening. Miss Mabel Harvey arrived Sunday evening from Lincoln for a visit of a few weeks with her sisters, Mrs. Clement and Mrs. Grosvenor.

Sioux City Journal, 14th: Mrs. John J. Ryan will entertain at an evening party Friday in honor of Miss Lorraine Murphy, whose marriage to Mr. George Carey will be celebrated June 22. On Saturday Miss Murphy will be complimented at a luncheon and bridge party at the Country club by Mrs. Tom Ashford.

Pender Times: P. M. Shearer and wife spent a few days at Hubbard last week. George Nash, of Thurston, left Monday for Philadelphia where he will spend the summer with his brother, Albert. In the fall he will enter the Carlisle school and take a six months course in mechanic arts after which he will go to the Ford factory at Detroit.

Sioux City Journal, 12: Mrs. Joe Heenan, of Jackson, Neb., visited friends in Sioux City yesterday. Died, in South Sioux City, June 11, 1916, Mrs. Lillie Esther Marsh, 24 years old, of peritonitis. She had been sick for several weeks. She is survived by her husband, C. A. Marsh, and a daughter, 2 years old. No funeral arrangements had been made last night.

Winnebago Chieftain: C. C. Frum went to Danbury, Ia., Saturday. The candidate this fall who expects to win his nomination by a two weeks canvass will undoubtedly be left at the post, as we believe it one of the most strenuous campaigns of the history of the world. All the politicians are building fences. Dan V. Stephens knows he will have a man to beat this year and the different postmasters in his district know he is sure keeping in touch with all the voters.

Tekamah Journal: Congressman Dan Stephens will have a lot of explaining to do to the voters of his district this fall. He has an opponent in the person of William P. Warner, who is going to make him hot foot it to come anywhere near being re-elected. Dan himself realizes that he is up against it this time and is trimming his sails accordingly. He will be careful to plan his campaign this year and will make an effort to remain on all sides of all propositions in order to get every vote. Dan's name will be Dennis, we feel, after "Bill" Warner gets done with him.

Sioux City Journal, 10: Thomas Mead, of South Sioux City, who fell from a scaffold at the new Methodist Episcopal church building, Nineteenth and Nebraska streets, Thursday, was slightly improved last night. Henry Peters, a prominent farmer of Emerson, Neb., was on the market looking after the sale of a load of beaves. When sold they brought the satisfactory price of $10.50. The cattle were purchased here last fall and fattened on old corn and alfalfa until this year's stand of alfalfa got well started. They were turned into the fresh alfalfa and the final finishing was made in that manner.

Sioux City Journal, 13: A "soft drink" establishment at 1019 Fourth street was raided by Patrolman Ed C. Becker and a police squad yesterday evening, and 323 one-half pint bottles of whisky were confiscated. The place was being operated by Nick Neilson. Charges of selling intoxicating liquor was placed against Neilson, J. N. Johnson and W. J. Welch. All were taken to police headquarters. Four men, Chas. Stevens, of Omaha; William Preng, of South Sioux City; John Burns, 1019 Fourth street, and A. V. Foster, Merville, Ia., also were arrested in the place and charged with disturbing the peace. The liquor was stored

Sioux City Daily News, 9th: No bids were received Thursday at the offering for sale of the combination bridge by F. L. Eaton, special master in chancery, and the sale was adjourned until July 1, at which time another opportunity will be given to bid on it. A couple of dozen curious ones shivered about the corridor as Mr. Eaton read the order of sale and asked for bids, but those who attended the sale did not look like they were in the class able to put up a $10,000 certified check to show good faith before bidding. Attorney John Joseph and Rev. C. N. McMillan, head and shoulders of the Woodbury County Antisaloal league, were on hand, having heard the Overland Transportation company, of Jackson, Neb., was going to buy the bridge. But such report proved only a rumor.

Sioux City Journal, 9th: One hundred and fifty members of the A. O. U. W. assembled at Crystal Lake park yesterday to celebrate the thirtieth anniversary of the founding of the Nebraska grand lodge. Frank L. Anderson, of Holdrege, grand master of the state, is attending the festivities. The celebration started at 10 o'clock. A ball game between two picked teams was scheduled for 1:30 o'clock. Basket luncheon was served at noon. Games and athletic stunts will feature the day's program. The evening will be given over to dancing in the park pavilion. Music will be furnished by Wilson's orchestra, of Sioux City. James C. Wonder, senior highway engineer in the federal bureau of public roads, department of agriculture, who was called to Dakota county, Neb., by the farm management association of that county, yesterday conducted an investigation preparatory to the construction of a permanent road between Dakota City and South Sioux City. Mr. Wonder has been in Dakota county for a week making soil tests and laying plans for the building of a permanent road between the principal towns of the county. Before being called to Dakota county, Mr. Wonder spent three weeks in Holt county, Neb., and prior to that made similar inspections in other Nebraska counties. Mr. Wonder made estimates on the construction of $4,000,000 worth of highways in Missouri before being called to Nebraska. His examinations take into consideration soil conditions with a view to arriving at the best material to be selected for permanent road construction. He says the Dakota county roads now are in better condition than any other county he has yet visited. The Combination bridge went begging for a purchaser at the public auction conducted yesterday afternoon by F. L. Eaton, special master in chancery, under appointment of Federal Judge Henry T. Reed. There were no bidders. After waiting on the court house steps for one hour and forty-five minutes for a bidder, Special Master Eaton adjourned the sale until July 10. Mr. Eaton, as required by law, had to read the special notice of the sale, consisting of several thousand words, and the supplemental decree of Judge Reed, filed on June 6, containing more than 1,000 words. "Gentlemen, I am here to sell the Combination bridge in its entirety," said Mr. Eaton, addressing a small group of men, consisting of two attorneys, three reporters and five courthouse attaches who were attracted to the scene. "Have I any bid?" There was no answer. One of the lookers-on said he had 10 cents to start the bidding. "That will help," said Mr. Eaton, "but I want to give notice at this time that any one caring to bid on the structure will have to deposit $10,000 in cash or a certified check for that amount as a guarantee that they will carry out the terms of the bid." There was no proffer of $10,000 in gold or a certified check for that amount. "Well, I guess I will rest," said Mr. Eaton, tired from reading the long legal notices. He sat down in a chair and lighted a cigar. This was at 1:20 o'clock. At 2:45 o'clock no bidder had appeared and the special master adjourned the sale until next month. E. A. Burgess, attorney for the Fort Dearborn Trust and Savings bank and the Union Trust company, of Indianapolis, who filed the proceedings which threw the bridge into the hands of the receiver, was not present. His law partner, Fred H. Free, appeared as the legal representative for the stockholders of the bridge company. "My clients are the ones that are getting 'gyped,'" said Mr. Free. "Still, if we could sell the bridge for scrap iron we might get some money out of it." Paul Hatfield, of the law firm of Henderson & Fribourg, appeared as representative of some of the bondholders who live in Indianapolis.

Looking Backward.

Dakota City Mail, June 9, 1876: A petition is being circulated and numerous signatures, asking the county clerk to call an extra meeting of the commissioners to see what can be done in regard to the question of a narrow gauge railroad, a subject that is now much talked of in this favored part of Eden.

Sioux City Journal, June 9, 1896: Born, on June 7, 1896, to Dr. and Mrs. J. E. Dewalt, of Morningside, a son, Miss Nellie Dibble, of Dakota City, was in town yesterday on her way home from Palo Alto, Cal., where she has been attending Leland Stanford university. On her farm across the river in Dakota county D. C. Dibble has a car load of 2-year-old Hereford steers which have been fattened on corn. They average 1,700 apiece. Henry W. Wood, of Dakota county, was in the city yesterday returning home from Woodbine, Ia., where he was visiting his daughter. Mr. Wood has 5,000 acres of improved bottom farm land across the river. He says the rains did not wash out any of the corn on his farms and he will not be bothered with replanting. One of the finest collections of Indian relics and war trophies in the United States is owned by D. C. Bristol ("Omaha Charley"), of Homer, Neb. He is not an educated man, but he has the history of each piece of Indian work in the collection in memory, and can explain the use of every article, as he has spent nearly all his life among the Indians. He may bring his collection to Sioux City during the fair this fall. It would make quite an attraction, and no doubt would be very interesting to those who have never seen a collection of this sort.

Farm Notes.

Issued by the University of Nebraska College of Agriculture.

SCOURS FROM INDIGESTION

The common cause of scours in calves is indigestion, or inflammation in the stomach. This may be brought about by a large variety of causes, but in any case the aim of the treatment should be to remove the source of the inflammation. As in most other ailments, half of the battle in curing scours is to begin treatment as soon as any trouble is noticed. The College of Agriculture says that the calves should be watched closely and treatment administered upon the first indication of scours. Treatment should always begin by cutting down the ration, thus giving the calf a chance to rid itself of the irritating material. The milk should be cut down to at least one-half and in severe cases withheld entirely. In most cases after one or two feeding periods have passed, the calf will appear normal, and full feeding can be gradually resumed.

In hard obstinate cases it may be necessary to administer a physic of 2 or 3 ounces of castor oil given in a little milk. After a calf has suffered with scours, feeding should always be light for a few days until the calf regains its strength.

SUGGESTIONS FOR HANDLING CREAM

Cool the cream each time after separating. Where ice is not to be had, place the can in a vat of cold water, preferably running water.

Never pour warm cream in with cool cream, as this practice will raise the temperature of the whole and encourage bacterial growth, causing the cream to become sour and develop bad flavors and odors.

When marketing, it is a good practice to cover the can first with a wet blanket and then with a dry blanket. This will help to keep the cream cool.

Grading cream is becoming more and more important. Frequently the prices vary from 3 to 4 cents a pound between properly and improperly handled cream.—College of Agriculture.

ESSENTIALS OF A GOOD LEASE

It should be written.
It should be definite.
It should provide for crop rotation.
It should provide for raising a legume.
It should encourage the keeping of live stock.
It should put a penalty on slipshod, careless methods.
It should insure the tenant—in the event of his removal from the farm—against losing the value of manure or fertilizer recently applied and of legumes and grasses recently sowed. In addition to the foregoing essentials, the College of Agriculture says that the lease should be written with reference to the particular farm in question. No perfect form of lease can be written to apply to all conditions.

JUNIOR SHORT COURSE

Seventy boys and girls, ranging from 12 to 20 years of age and representing 19 counties, enrolled at the annual short course in agriculture and home economics of the School of Agriculture at Lincoln last week. The course was intended particularly for members of the Boys' and Girls' clubs conducted cooperatively by the United States Department of Agriculture and the Extension Service of the College of Agriculture. Instruction was given to the boys in live stock, crops, soils, farm machinery, gardening, and woodworking. Instruction was given to the girls in cooking, canning, sewing, choice of clothing, home furnishings, and home decoration, as well as in woodwork. Various excursions were planned for those in attendance.

STRAWBERRY JELLY

Strawberries alone do not make good jelly, because they do not contain enough pectin. To make strawberry jelly, the College of Agriculture says to boil the white part of an orange peel until tender and add the juice to the strawberries. To determine whether or not pectin is present in the juice of any fruit, place two tablespoonfuls of the fruit juice in a clear glass and add an equal quantity of 95 per cent grain alcohol. Carefully turn the glass over on one side. If pectin is present a large amount of it will be in the form of a clear lump. If this is the case, it is safe to add as much sugar as juice. If the pectin is present in small lumps, use less sugar than juice.
